TEACHING EXPERIENCES @ WHEATON COLLEGE, IL

CHRISTIAN FORMATION & MINISTRY DEPARTMENT

Instructor – "CORE 355: Boundary Waters" (co-taught w/Dr. Matthew Milliner)

This course explores the boundaries between Christian faith and Native American culture in the Great Lakes region, as well as the boundaries between ourselves and God in Christian spirituality informed by Indigenous art and thought. Evoking the history of Christian missions in the Midwest, students engage in the Spiritual Exercises of Ignatius of Loyola supplemented by Indigenous Christian reflection. Concluding papers place student experiences in conversation with an investigation of a minority group in the United States. (4 credits)

SPRING: 2024

Instructor – "CORE 381: Poetry & Devotion" (co-taught w/Dr. Tom Martin)

This seminar course is organized around this overarching question: In what ways does devotional poetry nurture one's expression of Christian spirituality? The topics of the course are addressed within the cross-disciplinary intersection of Christian spirituality with English literature and writing. Specifically, the genre of devotional poetry is explored as a means through which the student experiences and expresses her or his relationship with God. (4 credits)

SPRING: 2022, 2023, 2024

Instructor – "CORE 101: First Year Seminar"

This course introduces students to practices of integrative thinking by engaging challenging, theologically significant enduring questions in a seminar-style course organized around a theme tied to the faculty member's specialty. The course has three interrelated components: foundations for addressing the value and purpose of liberal arts education, focused study of the abiding liberal arts question "What is the good life?," and exploration of a related perennial question chosen by the instructor: "How do Christian spiritual practices contribute to the good life." All components of each seminar emphasize integrative intellectual practice and model the integration of faith and learning in the liberal arts context. (4 credits)

FALL: 2019—present

Instructor – "CFM 215: Spiritual Formation in Community"

Moving beyond an individualistic focus of spiritual formation, this course engages the lived experience of being God's "called out ones". Following the framework of the weekly chapel program at the college along with the student's engagement in the local church, this course explores the experiences and best practices of how the body of Christ is formed within a communal setting. Attention is given to multicultural expressions and the diversity of styles and traditions in worship. (2 credits)

2020—present

Supervisor – "CFM 216: Discipleship Practicum + CFM 251 & CFM 693: Ministry Practicum"

Students participate in ministry in a specific context approved by their faculty advisor, integrating the theories learned in the classroom with the practices of ministry. The practicum includes a summative assignment in which students consider the links between ministry principles, personal spiritual formation, and practical skills. (0-2 credits)

2015—present

Instructor – "CFM 222: Teaching For Transformation" (initially a grad course: CFM 516)

2012—2015, 2019

This course promotes Christian growth through educational design and evaluation. Methods of teaching, curriculum development, and the character of the teacher are explored (with particular attention given to Dialogue Education). (4 credits)

Instructor – “CFM 224: Christian Spiritual Practices”

An introduction to Christian Spiritual Formation as the integration of theological understanding, faith, and spiritual practice. This laboratory course in spiritual formation explores the relational, spiritual and missional practices of the Christian spiritual life—Christian formation in community and service to the world (e.g., corporate worship, spiritual friendship, spiritual direction, small group accountability, hospitality, evangelism, compassion, social justice, creation-care). Students study, practice, and theologically reflect on these as biblical, historical, and psychological perspectives are brought to bear on the experience of class members individually and in the context of congregational leadership. (2 credits)

2011, 2019—present

Instructor – “CFM 232: Spiritual Guidance & Discernment”

This course is designed as a practicum experience in Christian spiritual guidance and discernment. Out-of-class attention is given to a protestant interaction with the spiritual exercises of Ignatius Loyola and the experience of meeting with a spiritual guide or listener. In-class lectures entails seminar format discussion and debriefing of class readings and practices as they pertain to guidance and discernment. (2 credits)

2008—2021

Instructor – “CFM 331/335: Teaching the Bible”

Designed to acquaint students, through both theory and practice, with the principles of effective biblical instruction. Methods of interpretation and literary aspects of the Bible are emphasized. (2/4 credits)

2020—present

Instructor – “CFM 494: Ministry in Culture” (co-taught with Laura Barwegen in 2018)

The enduring questions guiding this course are twofold: What is the good life? & How do we love in a world of difference? Students pursue deep integration of their major and the concepts they have explored throughout the entire Christ at the Core curriculum. The Capstone enables students to reflect upon their practical ministry experiences and, in combination with CFM 496: Internship, meets the general education requirement. (4 credits – formerly Senior Seminar)

SPRING: 2018—2022

Instructor/Advisor – “CFM 495/CFM 695: Independent Study”

Individualized course development on following topics: Urban Ministry, College Ministry, Women in Ministry, Latin American Ministry, Holy Spirit and Ministry, Christian Worldview, Nature and Development of Persons, Suffering and Ministry, Art and Spirituality, Teaching for Transformation II, Spirituality & Play, Henri Nouwen & Spirituality, Ethnography and Ministry, Theater and Ministry (2-4 credits)

2007—present

Coordinator – “CFM 496/CFM 696: Internship”

Provides practical experience under supervision in a setting appropriate to the student's major interests.

2003—2021

Instructor – “CFM 212/CE 432/CFM 532/INTR 548/EVAN 546: Discipleship”

This cross-listed course (with the Intercultural & Evangelism Departments) examines the biblical and historical models and principles for the life-long process of making disciples in a changing culture. Built on the foundation of spiritual formation and mentoring, students are challenged to grow as disciples so that they might also equip and encourage others to grow in following Jesus. (2-4 credits)

2003—2018

Instructor – “HESD 512: Bible in Ministry”

This course acquaints students with the formative nature and power of Scripture. It explores the principles and practices of using Scripture in ministry through reading, study, devotion, and meditation in personal, small groups and teaching, and related ministries of the church. (2 credits – required course for the MA in Higher Education and Student Development)

MAY: 2020, 2021

Instructor – “CE 497: Internship Seminar” (discontinued due to curricular changes)

Provides student debriefing on their internship experiences from several perspectives while making preparations for post-graduation plans. This course debriefs and synthesizes the theoretical and practical realities of vocation and calling. It gives consideration to the internship experience from several perspectives, offers preparation for post-graduate plans, and provides a forum to discuss issues pertaining to a liberal arts education, calling, vocation, and Christian living. CEM 496 is a prerequisite. (2 credits)

2003—2017

Instructor – “CFM 514: Ministry in Culture” (discontinued due to curricular changes)

The enduring question guiding this course is: How do we love in a world of difference? The course explores foundational cultural issues from a Christian, socio-cultural perspective. It provides opportunities for students to cultivate theory and practice of ministry in the multicultural American society, we well as the Church around the world. (2 credits)

FALL: 2016, 2017, 2018

Instructor – “GEL 211: Vocation Practicum & Seminar”

SPRING: 2015—Fall 2018

Students receive academic credit for an internship or practicum experience not offered through the major or minor department. Students complete 40 hours of work experience for each credit earned and attend a seminar course during the semester. The course focuses on Christian understandings of vocation and calling, fosters self-reflection on the work experience, and facilitates assessment of work-related skills within the Center for Global and Experiential Studies (now, Center for Global Programs & Studies). (2 or 4 credits)

Curriculum Design &amp; Program Debrief – Authority, Action, Ethics: Ethiopia , Wheaton IL & Ethiopia The AUTHORITY, ACTION, ETHICS: ETHIOPIA program (AAEE) is a deep analysis of the fundamental stories (authority), practices (action), and systems of evaluation (ethics), which are always implicit in any case of leadership around the world, including ‘ministry’ leadership and service learning. Our task is to make the implicit explicit. The program’s approach is descriptive (i.e., “How do authority, action and ethics actually work out in reality?”), interpretive (i.e., “Why do these factors of AAE matter?”), constructive (i.e., “What ought to be the normative ways AAE is expressed in our living?”) and pragmatic (i.e., “What strategies of action will achieve desired goals?”). The two courses (CEM 330: Intercultural Studies I: theory & CEM 340: Intercultural Studies II: praxis) provide an introduction to Ethiopia and the underlying themes of the narratives that shape individuals and cultures, the practices found within the outworking of those narratives (be they religious, political, ethnic, economic, cultural, sociological, anthropological, theological, etc.) and supportive challenge in the exploration of how we evaluate global situations and experiences. These themes were then further developed as students explored major differences between cultural systems while building attitudes and skills necessary for effective intercultural ministry. A program trip to Ethiopia, in May, offered contextualized experiences and debriefing for the theory explored in the classroom with travels to Addis Ababa, Lalibela, Gondor & Debre Zeyit. Adult Bible Community – Blanchard Alliance Church , Wheaton IL Designed and facilitated weekly studies:  The Divine Commodity: Discovering A Faith Beyond Consumer Christianity – Using Scripture, cultural analysis, and the artwork of Vincent van Gogh, this class will explore spiritual practices that liberate our imaginations to live as Christ’s people in a consumer culture that is opposed to his kingdom. Each week we will look at how consumerism distorts an element of our faith and present a vision for living differently. Taught with Skye Jethani, author of The Divine Commodity . (Fall 2010)  The Life Of Peter: Disciple Of Jesus Christ – Enter into the drama of Scripture as we trace the spiritual formation of Peter and consider our own commitment to follow Jesus. This yearlong study traces Peter’s development as a disciple through the Gospel and Acts narratives and the epistles that bear his name. The invitation is to indwell the story and so grow as disciples ourselves. (2009-2010)	2008—2010

The Gospel Of John: Learning to Abide In Jesus – The structure of this class community invites us to consider John’s gospel and the life and teachings of Jesus as we set our hearts (through prayer and song), study the Word of God, and seek to reflect on and practice what His Spirit has revealed to us. (2008-2009)
